RESULTS IN CALGARY

Alberta: The Liberals believe that upon the scrutiny of the 350 ballots which are looked up in sealed envelopes that they will increase the majority of their candidate. The majority of the good votes which are sealed up are doubtless Liberal. The Liberals are certain that about 200 of their votes, all good, have not been counted. Doubtless a large number of ballots which were not counted were not legally given. In addition to that, there is a strong probability that a large number of the votes which were looked up are for the Liberal candidate.

The Conservatives maintain that they will gain in the scrutiny. That remains to be seen. They are 31 behind at the start.

The vote of the Labor party was disappointing to them. The Liberals maintain that the Liberal Labor men stayed by their party, and that the slump was in the ranks of the Conservative Labor men. That is a point that can never be determined. The scrutiny of the challenged votes will be before the returning officer and a magistrate.

FELL DOWN A WELL

DROWNED AT ROSE RIDGE

Simon L'Esingue Killed by Falling Down a Well on Thursday

An aged gentleman, named Simon L'Esingue met his death by falling into a well at his place at Roseridge, ten miles northeast of St. Albert of Thursday. His house was being used as a polling place during the elections. The well into which he fell was about 50 feet deep, with two feet of water and some large stones at the bottom. In leaping over to lower a poll, the old man lost his balance. It is supposed that he was killed by striking the stones, as the skull was fractured. The body was taken to St. Albert, where an investigation was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner Braithwaite, and it was decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

THE LATES

Innisfail, Nov. 11.—3 p.m.—J. Simpson, Liberal, 9 majority, one poll to hear from.

LOCAL

The new Baptist church on First street will be opened tomorrow, Rev. John McNeill preaching morning and evening. No service will be held in McDougall Methodist church in the morning, nor in the Presbyterian church.

A team of the Edmonton Express Co. got frisky on McDougall Avenue at noon today and started to run. When opposite the Queen's avenue school, the horses broke away from the wagon and dashed into the bush north of the school, one of the horses burying himself completely under a pile of brush. No damage was done, however.

H. R. Griffiths has received permission from the city engineer to install hitching rings in the pavement in front of various places of business on Jasper avenue. The city supplies Mr. Griffiths the rings and he takes individual contracts from the merchants. As there is now a fine of $15 for leaving horses unhitched, Mr. Griffiths has already installed a good many of the rings.

A CORRECTION

By an error in yesterday's issue the name of Judge Sifton appeared among the speakers in Strathcona on Thursday evening. The gentleman referred to was Judge Tipton a well known resident of Strathcona and formerly a judge in one of the States of the Union.

J. G. Whitmore, representing the Aeolian Company of New York, who manufacture the famous Pianola piano player, the Weber Pianola piano, the Wheelock Pianola self-playing piano, the celebrated George Steck piano, the magnificent Aeolian orchestra, which is the triumph of the piano maker's art, which plays orchestral and band music with the absolute perfection of the greatest orchestras and bands. The Aeolian Company also manufacture the Aeolian Grand and the Vocalion, the latter instrument is the only organ having a combination of pipes and reeds that is absolutely satisfactory to the musician. Mr. Whitmore is also the western manager of the Mason & Risch Piano Co. of Toronto, manufacturers of the popular Mason & Risch piano.

THE SASKATCHEWAN CAMPAIGN

Rotherham, Sask., Nov. 4.—G. R. McCrany tonight presided over an enthusiastic and crowded Liberal rally addressed by Candidates Eas, Mr. Targoon and Premier Scott. Candidates McIntyre, also held the floor for five minutes, and James McKay, of Prince Albert spoke for him, dealing almost exclusively with the land question. The Opposition is trying to drop the school question and in some parts are appealing on the ground that Haultain will grant greater school privileges to Catholics.

Mr. Targoon gave an especially plain and effective constitutional explanation of both the land and school matters, speaking for 45 minutes. Premier Scott, who spoke last was in an exceptionally good voice, and for an hour and a half held the close attention of the large audience as he effectively made point after point against the Opposition position. He showed that the school and the non-party were necessary to Haultain to cover up an utterly indefensible record all along the line as regards the Moose Jaw convention, the federal advance and all the details of autonomy including education, and even more on that question than on others. On education Haultain dared not tell what he stood for, whether for our present system or against it. Mr. McKay had talked about restricted freedom, and in the next breath had admitted that the test case might result in further restricting our freedom by taking the separate schools away from public control. Mr. Scott asked both Targoon and McKay as lawyers to say—and both agreed that he was right—whether he was not right in saying that if the test case succeeded, the only effect would be to destroy section 17 of the Saskatchewan Act and put in its place section 93 of the British North America act and that this might result in the separate schools. Mr. Scott made the straight and honest C.P.R. Co. was actively in the field as agents of Haultain and his late provincial rights party. He challenged McKay to deny this charge.

McKay rose and declined to make straight denial; all he could say was that he did not know it. "Then," said Scott, "Mr. McKay and Mr. McIntyre are the genuine innocents abroad. McIntyre 'didn't know' at the Regina convention; McKay 'doesn't know' what is common knowledge in his own city, that after Haultain himself failed to induce Mr. Bennett, C. P. R. has said it to the Catholic Liberal, a man who himself heartily assents to my stand as to schools, to run for him in French Catholic Batoche, C.P.R. Superintendent Brownlee of Moose Jaw was sent up by the company and overcame Mr. Bennett's scruples. How? I state it because Mr. Bennett has said it to the liberal friends of his in Prince Albert that the company got him to run by promising to keep his salary going not only through the campaign, through sessions, if he is elected, but as long as he lives afterwards, and in addition to put up for him all the money that can be used in any way to secure his election in Batoche.

"Why," asked Mr. Scott, "is the C. P. R. corporation out for Haultain? Is it in the public interest for you to help on competing railways for you? Is it to promote the speedy building of the Grand Trunk Pacific? Is it to help to remove the burden of C. P. R. tax exemptions? These are vital questions for you. Look over the records over since the C. P. R. company was created, down to last session, look over the speeches I made and the votes I cast in parliament in five sessions on railway questions, and you will have the answer."

Mr. Scott's whole speech was a mastery one and carried the audience. The Haultain side saw through McIntyre's despicable course and Haultain's double dealing as never before. The people here want no Government subject to C.P.R. control.

A COLD BLOODED DEED

Regina Standard. The first accredited report of the way in which Stanley Ross met his death, supposedly at the hands of Lia Bing, is to hand. It appears that three little boys, Stanley Ross, Campbell King and Mark King, were in Lia Bing's laundry shop on the evening of the tragedy. They were waiting for their weekly laundry, on which Lia Bing was yet working. The boys had all along been on the most familiar terms with the Chinaman, their weekly visits having led to more or less association with them. As was their custom, the lads were indulging in their usual bantering Lia Bing. All at once, as if in a moment of uncontrollable frenzy the Chinaman seized Stanley Ross and held him by the neck, and the other reached for an iron. The two King boys became frightened and ran out the back door, but the one lad met the cruel fate now known to all. With a sickening thud the heavy instrument came down on the back of his head smashing his skull in. With the coming of his awful work, the Chinaman let go his hold of the boy, who retained sufficient consciousness to rush across the street, to his home and call to his mother.

A brother picked Stanley up and carried him next door to Mrs. Sharpe's boarding house, where Dr. McDonald was at tea. Within a very few moments and almost before the doctor had time to examine the wound, the poor boy expired.

Immediately on the alarm spreading, J. S. and Norman McLeod ran into the laundry, and there found Lia Bing hurt and bleeding. They called Doctors Targoon and McDonald, who made a hasty examination. Lia Bing was found lying on a heap of washing in the corner, the blood running out of a gashly cut in his throat. Evidently realizing his position, and the awful deed which he had committed, the Chinaman had lost no time in attempting to take his own life. Nearby was found a cleaver, covered with blood, with which he had slashed his throat. His windpipe was completely severed, and it looked as if there was no hope of recovery. The doctors, however, promptly sewed up the windpipe and arteries, rescuing him from the death he so eagerly sought.

At the Victoria Hospital here, the Chinaman murderer is reported to be improving. His condition, however, is very serious, and it is a great wonder that the awful gash made in his throat did not prove fatal.

HOMESTEADING—ITS PROSE AND POETRY

By A 'VARSITY BOY in The Toronto Globe.

The society miss who courts a coat of tan, with a few freckles thrown in for trimming, and the college chap who wants to get rid of an interesting pallor brought on by hard study should try Alberta sunshine along in July and August. It browns effectively, even the nose. So if you actually has it done its work on me that only yesterday a lady mistook me for Peter Luke. She was riding beside a good-looking chap, and the two of them drew rein on the beach as I made ready to launch Dandy, my new canoe, in solitary state on the shining bosom of Lake Waubamun. She called to me and I turned around with alacrity. It is not often one meets with a tall, fair lady in a trim riding habit, with a wisp of a veil flying from her braids. Our horse women are brown and squat and ride astride. It is a pleasant enough sight to see a group of the dusky maidens taking across the prairies, their ponies on the gallop, a part of the wild life of the west, but the girl with the braids was a breathe from home. I lifted my cap to her, and the strip of untanned forehead it revealed gave me away. "I beg your pardon," she said with a laugh and blush, "I took you for an Indian—at a distance, and was going to ask you about some of the lake legends. Nice blow to a beauty! What a complexion, anyway! I was willing to tell her all the legends I knew, also to improvise a few for her special benefit. There is the weird one Peter Luke imparted to me the day I came on him leaning against his ancient broncho, Split-the-Wind, his head eyes fixed wonderingly on the shadows fitting across the water.

No white man tells a legend in the way an Indian does. He cannot work in the same amount of mystery, cannot be brief, and terse, cannot give the air of childlike candor. The white man tells a story, the red one narrates the event.

Peter Luke, with an arm over Split-the-Wind's neck, proceeded to enlighten me as to certain reflections which fit across the water when Waubamun (Indian for looking glass) is nothing but a white pearl in the moonlight. Long ago when the Indians first embraced Christianity and were zealous after the manner of young converts, it came to pass that Chief Muskwa, the last of the pagans, fell ill and bade his sons bear him to the barabilltop, that he might die with the stars blinking in his dim old eyes, and the wind from the waters fresh in his nostrils. This they did. When the breath had left his body they did not give him a chief's burial, as all his tribe refused to take part in pagan rites. Muskwa, the mighty, instead of being carried in state to the valley of rest lying between Waubamun and Tamarac Ridge, was given a nice quiet grave on the hillside. So far so good. But there were "doins" in the neighborhood. Afrighted watchers saw a great procession wind down the hill, cross the shining Waubamun, and take its way to the valley. The morning light revealed no print of foot in the sand, no mark of implement in turning sod, but a new grave, fittingly bedecked, was in the valley, and the echoes of strange music lingered in the hills. And still on nights white with moonbeams and warm with mist the watcher sees strange things on the Waubamun, shadow of craft and canoe, of the whole cortege, waving plumes, bo-feathered braves and all—so says Peter Luke, with that detached air of his which implies that he guesses these simple facts not because he desires to impress me, but because I should know the truth.

I would have begun the Muskwa legend for my lady's benefit, but once I mentioned Peter Luke the game was up. She would have none but a real live redman's legends, and so, forsooth, I must call Peter Luke from his labors and let him idle away two good hours romancing on the beach. Later the lady with the braids thanked me warmly. "Your Peter Luke is a treasure," she said; he told me strange and beautiful things. The "treasure" turned his eyes first on her, then on me, then dropped them modestly. The childish smile on his bronze face widened, widened; the rascal was making fun of us both. That night I made him take his beloved Split-the-Wind out on a pelting rain and ride to the mission for the mail, by way of getting even. So many good writers have described the harvest fields of the Northwest that I have no need to try my hand on the subject. It is too big for me. As I said in my last letter, it gives you a feeling of elation to watch your own grain growing when you're an amateur farmer, as most of us are up here. This feeling gets deeper when the grain heads out, deepens yet further when it begins to ripen, and when, by-and-by, the reapers go clanging up and down, tossing aside the heavy sheaves, your heart beats time to the tune it sings, and the world seems echoing grandly: "Praise God, nor let a doubt assail. Seedtime nor harvest shall not fail."

You don't have to be religious to feel this; it isn't that homesteading teaches you all the beautiful lessons that sentimental folk set to its credit; it's just that the big stretch of golden grain seems to rise up and smite you into a reverent, vivid, real, for the God of the harvest. Maybe the good-looking Irishman from Coleraine (corner of Ferns) isn't happy these days! "Look yonder, and yonder, and yonder," he says, excitedly. "Yellow, more yellow, orange, beautiful orange, is the field forlorn the water. Sure the whole world looks like a 12th of July parade—'tis a glorious celebration, so 'tis." His potatoes, turnips, etc., are a great crop. On the strength of this he has added a wing to his shack, put down a well and started the neighbors guessing. He doesn't wear the scaphin grin for nothing; the pretty school marm has given notice that she will only teach this term. You see, we have our little romances here as elsewhere.

About this time I fell ill of a disease common to ambitious young homesteaders who have not yet out their wisdom teeth. In some circles it is known as "wanderlust," symptoms, in ours as a desire to better our condition, a sort of stirring of gipsy blood, a yearning to go further and fare better. In the glad days of youth, when we revered a corn-bush maxim as a sort of Scripture text adapted to every-day life, we learned all about the greenness of distant fields, and the inability of rolling stones to gather moss, but up here in this new world we arrange a set of new maxims to suit ourselves. The song of the threshing machine is followed by a stillness which wears on me—I want to get away—the homestead, with its stacks and stubble, is a big, bare place lying leagues from anywhere. "What do you say to taking a load of merchandise up the river to Fort Pitt, Battleford, and Lloydminster?" asks the genial commander of a fleet of rafts and lighters lying in the river.

"I'm with you," I answer, and the bargain is struck. We start on a warm September morning. The sky is full of woolly clouds and the wind is trying to push the blue mist in out of sight. We have on board forty passengers, twenty-two tons of coal, twelve tons of flour, five thousand pounds of bacon, vegetable fruit, material for a hard-

MOOSE JAW A MILITARY CENTRE

Moose Jaw, Nov. 6.—Col. Evans of Winnipeg, Commander of this military district, was in the city last week on business connected with the organizing of a local squadron of mounted rifles and incidentally indicated that Moose Jaw would probably be selected as a site for a permanent military corps. It is the intention of the Government to locate several such corps in the new provinces and Moose Jaw is looked upon as very well situated for military purposes. The erection of barracks and other accommodation would require a first expenditure of between $100,000 and $150,000, with an annual cost for maintenance of between $40,000 and $50,000. The scheme is quite far advanced and provision has been made for the estimates.

As to the Mounted Rifles corps, there is no question as to its being organized, in fact the officers have already been chosen.

WILLIS WAS ACQUITTED

St. Thomas, Nov. 6.—The Rodney murder trial came to a sudden conclusion with the evidence of the eleven-year-old Jesse Cole, who, like her father, saw Willis passing their place about 7 o'clock the morning of the murder.

G. S. Clair Keith, for the prisoner, argued that there was no evidence connecting Willis with the crime, and his Lordship, Judge Anglin, agreeing, ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. Willis was then discharged.

The crime occurred on the night of April 18, when a man visited the home of Benjamin Covel, an M.C.R. brakeman, who lived at old Rodney, Miss Covel and the murdered woman, Miss Eliza Lowry, aged 26, were alone. The stranger is said to have visited the house and demanded money from the female occupants who handed over their purses. The miscreant, it is said, then attacked Mrs. Covel, and when she attempted to rescue her companion the man dragged Miss Lowry to the back of the house and murdered her. The murderer returned to the house and dragged Mr. Covel from her hiding place under the bed and cruelly maltreated him. He was scared away by a cat at the back door, the murderer evidently thinking that it was Mrs. Covel's husband returning from his work.

Mrs. Covel got a view of the man's face, and several times she has sworn that Willis closely resembled the man to face and figure.

WINNIPEG MARKETS

[From the Commercial]

Trade in Manitoba wheat in the Winnipeg Market has shown a good demand most of the time. Prices seem to be influenced more by the fluctuations in the American market than by anything else, although the large bulk of wheat must go for export. The lake freight situation is seriously against prices. Owing to delay in unloading at the other side vessels lose at least one trip out of three they could make, and freight rates are higher in consequence, the rate now being 5c per bushel as compared with 2c at the beginning of October. The increase in freight rates decreases the price of wheat at this end. Today's prices are: No. 1 hard, 81c; No. 1 northern, 77 3/4c; No. 2 northern, 75 1/2c; No. 3 northern, 73 1/2c; spot or delivery first half November. Futures on the option market closed, Nov., 77 5/8c; Dec. 75 5/8c; May, 81c. All prices are for in store Fort William and Port Arthur.

Oats—No. 1 new oats, 32c; No. 2 oats, 31c per bushel in car lots on track Winnipeg.

Barley—No. 3, 36c per bushel; No. 4, 32c per bushel, car lots on track here.

The Cream Separator that is the Cheapest in the End.

There are some folks who are everlastingly trying to get "something for nothing." They buy a wagon at a "bargain" price because the agent says it's "just as good." And then, after a few months, when the tires and spokes have all loosened up, they cross the wagon.

Price not the only Difference.

It's the same way with cream separators. You can buy many other separators for less money than the U. S. Cream Separator sells for, but before you've finished paying for the experiment you'll find price isn't the only difference. The cheaper separator's soon get out of adjustment because built of cheaper material by inferior manufacturing methods; they consume twice the necessary amount of oil; they have a bowl that will not run true, and does not skim clean. The repairs in the first few years would pay the difference for the U. S. Cream Separator.

Durability is Important.

The U. S. Cream Separator has stood the test of time. Many of them have been in use for 10 years, and cost less than a dollar for repairs. They run easy, skim cleaner than others, have a simple bowl, enclosed gears, and a convenient low supply can.

Homesteading

ware store and the goods to stock it, also groceries, etc. At first we think we can make the return trip in fifteen days; later we know better. We had troubles of our own getting our craft to its destination.

The third day out in the boat. The pilot runs her ashore, when she proceeds to settle down gracefully in water enough to soak our oats thoroughly. These we unload and spread out on canvas along the shore. Repairing damages, drying and reloading the grain take five days, and on the third, four of our crew forsake us to cast in their lot with a rival fleet. Up to this time the commodore and myself have contented ourselves with bossing the job, but now we lay aside our dignity and our glad raiment and buckle in to do the work of the deserters. It isn't my idea of a holiday, yet it has its charm. The Swede who manœuvres as our pilot has liquor on board and embraces the opportunity offered by an idle time to continue a spree begun back in Edmonton. He grows so wild we have to tie him up lest he jump or fall into the river. We get away at last and take the Moose Rapids on the fly. The water fairly boils for about a mile. The darky cook, who hasn't made this trip before, is so scared he turns almost white and burns the dinner to a crisp. The excitement is not over with the shooting of the rapids. The river here forms itself into three channels. Our pilot being still "indisposed," we feel we ought to choose our particular channel with care. Finally we decide that as the south one is shallow and the centre one a regular chute running nearly twenty miles an hour between rocks only forty feet apart, we will take the north. It doesn't do to despise maxims altogether, as I'm finding out to my cost. The man who warned us that time and tide wait for nothing was a wise old head. We are a trifle long over our deliberations. Before we know it that noisy, tempestuous middle channel has us in its grip, gives us a toss to right and left by way of letting us know how little and mean we are compared with itself, twirls us about much as a summer whirlwind does a bit of thistle down, tips us backward and forward like a drunken rocking-chair, then settles down to business in real earnest. Away we go in a cloak of spray of our own making, past the cliff in a cloud of foam that grows thicker, whiter, angrier as we fly thicker, whiter, angrier as we fly between the rocks lower down. A mad race for the bend in the river, which we round at a pace which sends one of our small boats high and dry on shore, smashes the crockery, flings the tinware clattering right and left, upsets the fat passenger, scares everybody quiet, and then we go sailing safely on the smooth river, ahead of all the other crafts, and ready to make ourselves believe that, after all, the middle channel is the one we would take were it all to do over again. "Like to try that once more?" I enquired of the Frenchman at the wheel. He shakes his head. "Nay, nay, Pauline," he says, soberly.

We are from Friday to Sunday going from Battleford to Lloydminster. The country is too level to be pleasing, the settlers are mostly from the old country, with much to learn about the hardships of homesteading. The level land is covered with grass, which isn't green like the hill country, but short and grey—great ranching country if the winters were milder—but giving one an impression of bleakness and loneliness. Lloydminster itself is a nice little town of some half dozen stores, three restaurants, two butcher shops and a bakery, livery and blacksmith shop. The immigration building is a credit to the place, and is bigger, cleaner and better equipped than the one at Stratford. You find yourself wondering how, with a territory covering so many square miles to pick from, a territory abounding in little lakes and streams, they chose a site that has not a drop of good water within a mile of it. I have the pleasure of hearing the Rev. Mr. Lloyd preach to his people on this Sunday afternoon. He is a clever-looking man, clear-eyed Anglican type, and gives the impression of being much in earnest.

We find a ready market for our wares, and the return journey is made without grave mishaps than grounding on such stray sandbanks as happen to get in our way. The days are shortening rapidly, there is a nip of frost in the air, and so it comes that the smoke curling up from the chimney as I ride up the trail one October evening has a pleasant suggestiveness of comfort about it. Old Major, with a bark of delight, holds out a paw to shake hands. The house on the hill has its door hospitably open—pretty little house, eh, Major? Our own house, eh, Major? He sniffs. The homestead's the place, eh, Major? There is a hearty laugh behind, and I turn to greet the man from Coleraine. "He is the proud kid, so he is," exclaims that worthy. "Sure he carries his head high, as the wolf said when the giraffe poked his nose in the better window."

Old Major grins knowingly, and pounds out an emphatic "I told you—so" on the hearth with his stump of a tail.

STOVES

will soon be needed, and no doubt they will go with a rush.

If you want a first class up to date Cast Iron Range that has been a winner for many years, we have the "Happy Thought." There is more of this Range in use than any other one Range in Canada, and no person has ever heard of a poor one. Then, if you want an all steel and malleable iron range, we have the "Monarch." You cannot break this range, and it has a mirror polished top which makes it a thing of beauty to look at as well as to use.

For any up to date line of heating stoves we think we have them all beat. It is not a case of you having to take what we have; our assortment justifies us in saying you can get just what you want from us.

We have from the smallest to the largest heating stoves in any style and for any purpose, to burn both coal and wood, or both. The prices are made to suit the pockets of all, and while we make only a very small profit on each stove we think the quantity we sell justifies us in saying that we can sell on so close a margin and still hold our own. We have everything in Stove Trimmings, and first class Mechanics to deliver and put them up. Do not waste time in looking all over the city, but come direct to us.

THE REIGN OF TERROR

St. Petersburg, Nov. 5.—Order was preserved in St. Petersburg yesterday though there was a notable demonstration of revolutionists at the funeral of those who had been killed in the fights last week. The revolutionists of the capital declared they would continue to organize and arm for the conflict with the Government.

In Odessa, Sunday was passed in comparative quiet. Estimates of the casualties from there from the beginning of the trouble until Saturday night vary from 3,500 to 5,750 killed and 10,000 or more wounded.

At Brestoff, on the Don, one hundred persons are said to have been killed on Sunday in a collision with the soldiers.

At Kishineff and Leon pillage continues and the same conditions prevail at Loda, Kilia, and other places in the provinces. At Warsaw yesterday 200,000 persons engaged in an anti-government demonstration. In spite of the manifesto declaring freedom of the press, papers there refused to support the censorship have been suppressed.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed by Russian Liberals at the ambiguous phraseology of the proclamation granting amnesty to political prisoners under which liberty is withheld from many of that class of offenders.

PITIFUL SCENES

From all over Russia comes news of the release of persons under the amnesty proclamation. There were many pitiful scenes connected with the returning of the families. The doors of the lastile Spiernia, the detention prison of the Vibrog side of the river, were opened at 2.45 this morning. The authorities gave to each person released 20 cents to pay his car fare, and turned him loose. The news of the coming release was known inside the prison. A woman who was all ready to enjoy her release, at the last moment was informed that she did not come within the provisions of the amnesty and went into hysterics.

BRITISH LOSSES ENORMOUS

New York, Nov. 6.—A special cable from St. Petersburg to the Times says that the recent outrages at Tomsk and Tyer and especially those at Odessa are to be investigated. At Odessa British subjects have suffered enormous losses.

There can be no longer the slightest doubt that the main source of the danger to life and property lies, not in the revolutionists, but in the mobs instigated by the police and reactionaries. The police at Moscow are openly organizing attacks against Liberals and the metropolitan has ordered that hooligans be read in the churches with the same object.

TO STOP DISGRACEFUL PROCEEDINGS

The new procurator of the Holy Synod, the Liberal Prince Obolensky, has already taken action to stop this disgraceful proceeding.

TROOPS CHARGED WITH BAYONETS

Tomsk, Siberia, Nov. 6.—The troops, today were forced to charge with bayonets against a mob which was pillaging Jewish houses. A number were killed and many were wounded. The city is half sacked.

Elizabethopol, Caucasus, Nov. 6.—The Muselman population has organized manifestations in honor of the emperor's manifesto, and orators called on the population to cease all national hatred.

PRINCE LYOFF INTERVIEWS DE WITTE

St. Petersburg, Nov. 6.—Prince Lyoff explained to the Associated Press today that the deputation of the Moscow constitutionalist demonstration group of which he is a member, which called on Count de Witte yesterday, demanded the convocation of a constituent convention, believing that such a course was the only solution of the present situation. He added: "Count Witte asked for our support and told us that our views very nearly corresponded with the other groups. But the support of no party can now stem the tide or affect the final development of the great national drama. Antocracy has abdicated in words, but cannot stop half way. A constituent assembly elected by universal direct suffrage must formulate guarantees. It would be better for the government to realize this immediately than to travel the painful path over which the people will drag it. Count Witte told us that universal suffrage was also his final aim, but he disagreed with the methods we proposed and said that amidst the present excitement which daily was leading to bloody collision between different classes of the population, he did not consider it possible for the government to take the responsibility of establishing universal suffrage. That step must be taken by the national assembly itself."

REFORMS WILL BE ENFORCED

St. Petersburg, Nov. 6.—Another government note, issued today, says: "The origin of the disturbances is to be found in the embitterment of various sections of the population against each other caused by the imperial manifesto of October 30. The only means of combining the dispersing lies in all classes, becoming permeated with the conviction that the reforms will be inflexibly carried through. No efforts of the enemies of reform will prevent this being accomplished."

The note also calls on the fermenters of disturbances to cease their propaganda, and loyal subjects to co-operate in the pacification of the country, as the government in accomplishing the reforms desires the support of the peaceable and thoughtful majority of the nation to whom the future development of Russia on the basis of civil liberty and territorial integrity is dear.

"In particular," the note concludes, "the government reckons on the support of the press which must understand that in the present situation a union of the intellectual forces of the whole nation is necessary."

THE CITY COUNCIL

HELD REGULAR MEETING

Medical Health Officer to Enforce the Quarantine By-Law - Accounts Ordered Paid

The regular weekly meeting of the city council was held last night in the council chamber, there being present Mayor McKenzie and Aldermen Griesbach, Picard, Bellamy, May, Clark, and Fraser. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

A communication from H. P. Mountfield reporting that the books for October had been audited and found correct, was received and adopted. Dr. Braithwaite, medical health officer, wrote saying that a case of scarlet fever had been discovered which had been attended by no doctor, and had not been reported. The people in whose house the case was located were Germans and understood very little English. Dr. Braithwaite wished to know what to do in the matter.

The secretary was instructed to write to the doctor instructing him to comply strictly with the provisions of the by-law.

The discussion on this communication gave rise to the matter of the danger to public health from sewerage running from the general hospital onto the street. Mr. Hargreaves, commissioner of public works, explained that pipes had been laid for sewerage connection with the hospital, but the plumbing having been delayed, this work was not yet completed. The secretary was instructed to write the authorities of the hospital asking them to make connections with the sewer as soon as possible.

A communication was received from G. R. F. Kirkpatrick manager of the Imperial Bank, asking the council what they intended doing towards securing coal-mining rights on lands within the city. The secretary was instructed to reply, stating that the council would apply for expropriation powers at the first meeting of the Provincial Parliament.

Mr. Kennedy on behalf of the Edmonton Hoist Co. wrote in regard to the company's proposition with the city to close a portion of First street the land to be used by the company. If the desired permission were given the company, Mr. Kennedy suggested that a committee be appointed to draw up an agreement. Accordingly the city solicitor and commissioners were appointed a committee to draft an agreement between the city and the Edmonton Hoist Co.

REPORTS

The commissioners reported that they had drawn up an agreement between Edmonton and Strathcona for supplying electric power to Strathcona for street lighting purposes.

The agreement provided that power was to be supplied by a direct wire from the Edmonton station to the switch board at the Strathcona distributing station. It was to be charged for at the rate of 10 per kilowatt, to be measured by a meter at the Edmonton generating station and was to be supplied for a period of not less than three months. Edmonton station was bound to supply the power so long as it was not detrimental to the city's lights or its own customers. Edmonton will not be liable for failure to supply the amount owing to breakage or other accident. The report was adopted as read.

It was recommended by the Commissioners that a system of street numbers be adopted as read. They suggested a system by which the numbers at the corners of each street on Jasper avenue would be 800 and would increase northward, the blocks to be numbered in hundreds. After some discussion the system was adopted as recommended.

The master of plating sign boards on the corners of the streets on Jasper avenue was indicated the name or number of the street, was brought up, and it was moved and carried that sign boards be placed at the corners as far west as Nineteenth street. Following is the list of accounts passed.
